

2008 Balluminaria

Sunday, 23 November 2008

Tonight I took my daughter to see the hot air balloons at Eden Park. This was the first Balluminaria that I have attended since I am usually out of town when this event happens. Unfortunately it was probably the coldest it has ever been for this event. Even with my gloves on, my fingers were still numb and the lake was frozen over so that affected the reflection. We still had a great time and I look forward to returning next year. You can view the gallery here.