

St. Louis Revisited

Monday, 02 March 2009

Last month I was in St. Louis for the first time in three years. Before moving to Cincinnati, I spent five years of my life in the St. Louis metro and my oldest daughter was born there so it was nice to see it again. This trip was work related and those long nights kept my camera in the bag. Luckily I had a few hours to kill before heading to the airport on my last day so I stopped by the Gateway Arch for a few photos and to revisit the underground visitors center again. The updated gallery can be viewed here.